Déjalos ser lo que quieran ser

Ser un niño es una aventura nueva cada día. Es juego e instinto. Es reír a carcajadas porque te ha hecho mucha risa algo que ha dicho mamá. Y saltar y bailar porque estás contento. A veces, también enfadarte porque no te gustan las lentejas, pero te las tienes que comer. Ser un niño es cuestionarte absolutamente todo y hacerte preguntas, muchas preguntas. Es dar pasos de gigante hacia el futuro, y construir tu identidad poco a poco.

Aprender a tener tu propia voz en el mundo y que sea escuchada. En Garvalín, dejamos que los niños sean niños. Pero también, que sean lo que ellos quieran ser. Sin límites, sin juicio.

Acompañándolos en cada paso, en cada tropiezo y en cada salto hacia delante.

Being a child is a new adventure every day. It's play and instinct. It's laughing out loud because something mom said was just too funny. And jumping and dancing because you're happy. Sometimes, it's also getting upset because you don't like lentils—but still having to eat them.

Being a child means questioning absolutely everything and asking lots and lots of questions. It's taking giant steps toward the future and slowly building your identity. Learning to have your own voice in the world—and making sure it's heard.

At Garvalín, we let children be children. But also, be whoever they want to be. Without limits, without judgment. Supporting them every step of the way, through every stumble, and every leap forward.
